Peloton Interactive, Inc. Announces Successful Completion of $900 Million Global Refinancing

November 20, 2026 at 4:05 PM EST

NEW YORK, Nov. 20, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Peloton Interactive, Inc. (“Peloton”) (NASDAQ: PTON) today announced it has successfully completed a global refinancing that reduced overall debt and extended debt maturities.

Summary of Transactions

- Peloton raised $700 million from new and existing investors through an upsized private offering of senior secured notes due 2032 (the “notes”).
- Peloton entered into a new $200 million five-year revolving credit facility led by Goldman Sachs, which replaced Peloton’s existing $100 million five-year revolving credit facility.
- Peloton repaid all term loans outstanding under its existing $1 billion five-year term loan facility and terminated the facility.

Peloton used the net proceeds from the offering of the notes, together with cash on hand, to repay all term loans outstanding under its existing $1.0 billion five-year term loan facility, which was terminated in connection with such repayment, and to pay fees and expenses related thereto.

“This transaction is a direct reflection of the progress we have made in strengthening Peloton’s financial foundation”, said Sid Thacker, Peloton’s Chief Financial Officer. “In addition to lower interest expense, we now have the flexibility to pursue our strategic ambitions and provide strong returns to our stakeholders in FY2027 and beyond.”

Peloton worked with its lead bank, Goldman Sachs, and its financial advisor, BDT & MSD Partners, to complete this holistic refinancing.
